Dear Clients,

Despite changes in many public places, when you come for your private in-person session with me, you will need to wear a protective mask. If you arrive with no mask, I will offer you one. This policy remains in place until I feel confident that I will be keeping my vulnerable clients safe.

Please take the questionnaire that comes in your e-mailed appointment reminder seriously. We can reschedule if you are symptomatic.

All other practices are unchanged:

I have been safely offering in-person Feldenkrais sessions in my office since July 2020. I have been fully vaccinated and boosted. I am able to do sessions in-person with you with touch or without.

- We do the session with the windows cracked open for good air flow. The room heats up nicely despite the fresh air when needed. In summer, I cool the room with the air conditioner in between sessions to make the room comfortable.
- I am washing my hands religiously, and using hand sanitizer as well. If you prefer that I wear gloves during our session, we have that option.
- After you leave I open the windows extra wide and open the door to the office for a big exchange of air for several minutes.
- The air purifier runs all night every night.
- I use a disinfection regime, done after each client leaves. As always, linens are replaced after each client.
- Two days before your session, you will get the usual appointment reminder with some new information on it: a checklist for you read through to confirm you are as safe as possible to come in. I am still waiving my 48-hour cancellation policy during this time for cases of contagious illness.
- Everyone must wear masks as described above; I have disposable surgical masks to offer if you need one. My mask is health-care grade. If you have a special condition that requires that you do your session without a mask, you must first have a conversation with me about it.

I hope that this information makes you feel more comfortable, with more “knowns” about coming in. If you are at all uncomfortable with coming in, but you are missing your Feldenkrais, you might consider doing an online session. Many clients have had very good experiences with online sessions.

Warmest greetings, Sheri
